WORLD AWAITS JAP DECISION ON MANCHURIA

Vital Question Is Whether Opinion of Others Will Be Defied.

U. S. AGENT IS SEATED

Gilbert Enters League Council Session at Geneva Today.

By United Press

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17—Whether Japan will yield to the organized pressure of world opinion or defy it and pursue an aggressive course in Manchuria became the all important question today.

Welcomed with open arms, Prentiss B. Gilbert, American consul at Geneva, has officially taken his seat in the league council as the representative of the United States during the consideration of the use of the Kellogg-Briand anti-war pact to prevent war in the Orient.

The United States, forced by the senate to remain out of the league, has now, temporarily through executive action, joined hands to use what the United States described as the "tested machinery" of the league to save peace. It is expected this will result in a prompt public appeal to Japan and China to adhere to their pledges in signing the Kellogg-Briand pact not to resort to war to settle disputes. The chief concern now is whether Japan will bow to this gesture.

China already has indicated she wishes to place herself in the hands of other powers. Japan strongly prefers to settle the trouble directly with China.

Japanese Ambassador Debuchi here has urged his government to modify her opposition. Other Japanese sources say public opinion in Japan is united in resenting the pressure of outside powers. Some Japanese believe that eventually Japan will withdraw from the league because of the incident.

TOKYO, Oct. 17—Japan was undecided today as to whether it would defy the League of Nations in the event the latter refuses to reconsider Tokyo's contentions in the league council's discussions of the Sino-Japanese dispute over Manchuria.

AL CAPONE TRIAL CONCLUDED TODAY

Final Arguments Made; Judge Charges Jury at 2 P. M.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 17—Three years of investigation, months of intensive preparation, volume of evidence and torrents of oratory simmered down today to a question for 12 men to decide—is Al Capone guilty of violating the income tax laws?

Only a brief summation by United States District Attorney George E. Q. Johnson, and the instruction of Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson remained before the case was given the jury.

Judge Wilkerson announced at the opening of court that he would instruct the jury at 2 p. m.

The usual elaborate claims of victory were flaunted before the jurors. There was "not one scintilla of evidence to support the charges." And on the other hand, "there could be no possible doubt of his guilt."

The husky Capone, the world's most notorious gangster, watched the jury eagerly during the final moves of this important legal battle.

By The Associated Press

TOLEDO, O., Oct. 17—A central mortgage bank patterned after the Federal Reserve system is advocated by Ohio real estate men as additional protection for long time financial paper and savings banks. The plan for such a bank, presented by Harry C. Kissell of Springfield, president of the National Association of Real Estate boards, was indorsed at the conclusion of the annual convention of the Ohio Association of Real Estate Boards yesterday.

Kissell said the proposed bank would operate under federal control and would permit savings institutions which lend funds on real estate security to realize on these assets when needed immediately.

Frank Malich of Cincinnati, was elected president.

DEATH MATTER OF HOURS

Dr. Howe Indicates End Is Near as Patient's Heart Loses Strength.

By The Associated Press

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Oct. 17—The strong heart of Thomas A. Edison was weakening today, as indicated by a pulse which his doctor described as "poor."

Dr. Hubert S. Howe, who for the first time remained all night with his patient, issued his first bulletin at 9:30 a. m. today, an hour earlier than had been his custom. He indicated that from now on he would probable issue a bulletin every three hours.

"Mr. Edison has remained all night," the first bulletin read, "in a condition which has all the appearance of normal sleep. He is breathing quietly and easily. His pulse, however, is poor."

The reference in his first bulletin today to Edison's pulse being poor was considered of significance because it is the inventor's strong heart which has sustained him so long despite the poison which his weakened system has been unable to eliminate.

At 11 this morning Dr. Howe told reporters that he had definitely decided to remain at the Edison home day and night from now on.

"I consider Mr. Edison is now gravely ill," he said. "This is the first time I have felt definitely that the end is approaching. Mr. Edison has gone another 24 hours without nourishment and his heart is gradually growing weaker."

Unpaid Chicago Teachers Ask Aid of Pastors

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 17 — Chicago's unpaid school teachers have turned to the ministry for aid.

North Side instructors, meeting yesterday, decided to ask the city's ministers to devote a part of their sermons tomorrow to the financial plight of the teachers. They have received no money for their services since last April. Instead they have been paid in scrip, acceptable at some stores for merchandise. Yesterday, however, the teachers, who are fighting for cash, won a temporary injunction from Circuit Judge Philip J. Finnegan restraining the school board from issuing the scrip in lieu of pay checks.

W. B. Hornbecker, a teacher who acted as temporary chairman of the meeting, said: "In all my 45 years of teaching in Chicago, this is the first time I have been hungry."

A tax muddle is blamed for the school board's lack of funds to pay the city's 14,000 teachers.

SEC. ADAMS IN 'PEACE CRUISE' WITH HOOVER

URGES CUT IN EXPENSES

Chief Executive Warns Against Boost in Public Tax Burden.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17 — A week-end family cruise on a battleship called the warring parties together today in the dogged dispute between the White House and the navy department over the Hoover economy program.

A lull came in the sporadic outbursts between the two while the President and Mrs. Hoover were preparing to depart from the naval academy at Annapolis tonight accompanied by navy guests and their wives who are not at all in sympathy with Mr. Hoover's economy efforts.

Plans for Cruise

The party will cruise off the Virginia capes until Mr. Hoover goes ashore Sunday night to give an employment radio speech and then goes to Yorktown, Va., Monday to commemorate the surrender of the British in the Revolutionary war.

The President appealed to public opinion to back him in what he believes are the efforts of the admirals to prejudice the public against his economies. He said the economies "can, must and will be" adopted.

While Mr. Hoover was guarding the navy figures, they leaked into the press, apparently from navy sources. Through the same channels came the suggestion that his orders would mean "abolition of the Navy band," and suspension of the proposed trip of the old U. S. S. Constitution to Galveston, Tex., this winter.

Some of the information inspired by the navy was in a more serious vein. It was to the effect that Boston and Charleston navy yards would have to be abandoned, the

POLICE CHECK STORY OF KIDNAPING HERE

Robert Locke, 18, Says Two Men Left Him Bound, Gagged in Car.

The story of Robert Locke, 18, colored, of 339 Jefferson street that he was kidnaped Thursday night is being investigated today by police. Police were notified of the youth's disappearance Friday morning by Locke's father, and a search was begun. Since that time, Locke reappeared.

When questioned by his father and police, Locke said he had been seized by two men in an uptown alley Thursday night, and was bound, gagged and thrown into the rear of his automobile.

After driving north of the city, the men abandoned the car along the Pennsylvania tracks, placing Locke in the front seat. He climbed from the car, he told police, and removed his gag and freed his arms with the aid of a passerby.

He was unable to furnish possible motives for the kidnaping when questioned by police. His automobile was found at the spot his captors were said to have abandoned it.

In their investigation, police are checking several stories told them as reasons for the kidnaping.

JOBS FOR NEEDY TO BE AIM OF GROUP

Committee To Be Named Monday To Help Find Work for Unemployed.

Plans for the formation of an unemployment relief committee to stimulate work resources of the city and county and virtually "manufacture jobs" for unemployed persons, were announced this morning by H. E. Walker, president of the Family Welfare society.

To Be Named Monday

The committee will be formed Monday night when heads of 18 organizations and groups meet to nominate members from their respective groups. Formation of the committee was suggested Tuesday by Ellwood Street, a representative of President Hoover's national committee on unemployment relief.

Working with city and county officials, industries, and with citizens generally, the committee will attempt to create jobs of varying nature for the unemployed, especially for those now receiving charity. To give "jobs instead of charity" is the aim of welfare leaders in forming the committee, Mr. Walker said.

Plans for organizing the committee were discussed at a meeting of the Family Welfare society yesterday. City and county officials are among those pledging support to the committee.

Favor Plan

Others reported as favoring the plan were the chamber of commerce, the Central Labor Union Marion Real Estate board, Kiwanis, Rotary, Retail Merchants association, board of education, American Legion, Marion County Federation of Women's clubs, the civic council of 100, the Welfare society and the community fund.

A voluntary reduction in the salary of Mrs. Jane Alexander, secretary of the Family Welfare society, was announced at the meeting yesterday. Her monthly salary of $175 has been reduced to $100 at her request.

OFFICE SAFE BLASTED OPEN

NITRO-GLYCERINE USED

Crackmen Escape with $15 and Quanity of Stamps.

Using a charge of nitro-glycerine that not only removed the doors of a large safe but wrecked several pieces of office furniture, safe crackers last night blasted a safe in the office of the Pure Oil Co. on west Center street and escaped with $40 in cash and a quantity of stamps. The burglary was discovered by employes when the office was opened this morning.

A voluntary reduction in the salary of Mrs. Jane Alexander, secretary of the Family Welfare society, was announced at the meeting yesterday. Her monthly salary of $175 has been reduced to $100 at her request.

Getting into the office by breaking out a section of a front window, the robbers, who were apparently unfamiliar with the power of the explosive, poured a quantity of nitro-glycerine around the doors of the safe and touched it off by an electric wire.

So terrific was the explosion that the heavy doors of the safe were blown entirely across the room. A ring from the combination was blown through the end of a desk while a plate of a postal scale, which stood near the safe, penetrated the side of a steel filing cabinet.

The distance from the office to the nearest dwelling it is thought, prevented the sound of the explosion being heard.

LAVAL ADVISED TO ASK WAR DEBT CUT

By The Associated Press

PARIS, Oct. 17—Premier Laval, enroute to America, was represented by the newspaper Le Matin today as having been advised to propose to President Hoover a 50 per cent reduction in inter-governmental war debts in place of a possible extension of the one-year moratorium.

If he follows their advice, he would oppose renunciation of Germany's unconditional reparations payments, it was said, but would accept the substitution of payments in kind or payments in money.

OHIO STATE RENEWS CRIMSON RIVALRY IN GAME WITH WOLVES

Buckeyes Hope To Check Title Ambitions of Michigan Eleven.

By The Associated Press

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Oct. 17—A gridiron rivalry of the first magnitude, was renewed today when Ohio State stepped out against Michigan in a game which, the Wolverines believe, has the Big Ten championship at stake.

The men of Michigan feel that the worst they can expect is a titular tie if they surmount the Buckeye hurdle. Ohio's victories are keyed to high pitch to nip the Wolverines' championship aspirations.

Michigan proved a single threat team in eking out a 13 to 7 victory over Chicago last week by forward passes. Coach Harry Kipke has drilled his backfield this week in a rushing defense and hopes to take advantage of Harry Newman's throwing arm and keep the Ohio defense spread as well as to gain yardage. The Buckeyes remember Newman well. His passes beat them last year, 13 to 0.

Injuries forced Coach Sam Willaman to revise his Buckeye lineup. Nuzman at left end in place of Ferrall, and Gilman at right end, in place of Rabenstein were his last hour wing selections.

Bell was his choice for left tackle in place of Rosequist, whose injuries kept him in Columbus.

The only uncertainty in the Michigan line-up was whether Stan Hoxer, veteran end, would be in playing form. Kowalik or Cantrill, sophomores, are the alternates.

Seventy thousand fans, including Governor George White of Ohio and Wilmer M. Brucker of Michigan are expected to witness this, the twenty-eighth gridiron meeting of the two schools.

WINNIPEG BIDS FOR ST. PAUL FRANCHISE

Exact Status of American Association Champions Appears Uncertain.

By The Associated Press

ST. PAUL, Oct. 17—St. Paul's status as a member of the American Association baseball league for next year was uncertain today, with two Winnipeg residents reported bidding for the franchise for that city.

R. J. Connery, owner of the Saints since 1925, professed not to have heard officially that two Canadian sportsmen were prepared to make him a good offer for the local club. Connery said, however, he would be glad to discuss a sale with the men should they get in touch with him.

The Winnipeg men, whose names were not revealed, were reported to have made overtures to President Thomas J. Hickey of the American Association to transfer the St. Paul franchise to Winnipeg.

St. Paul won the league pennant this year, but attendance was not up to expectations. The Saints were defeated by Rochester of the International league in the little world series.

BY BOB KIRKPATRICK

Sports Editor, The Star

According to the schedule there was a football game to be played at 3 p. m. yesterday between Harding and Findlay High schools at Donnell Memorial stadium in Findlay. However, about the only things that went according to the schedule were the time and the place. There really wasn't a football game, that is unless football may be defined to include both grid competition and track performances.

The teams representing the two schools were present all right and put in the required 48 minutes on the greensward. The only thing that removed the result from the category of football is that a final tally of points revealed Findlay had collected some 58 points while Harding had gathered just 38 less—in other words, none. Gentlemen that's not football. But it is fun to watch.

Harding Plays Well

The funny thing about this game—you can scarcely call it a battle—with Findlay yesterday is that despite the fact Harding was given the most terrific pasting in three years is that the Presidents played the best football they have played in several weeks. The score was lopsided and all that and Harding never had a chance but the Red and Black combine exhibited flashes of the same drive which carried it to a 6-6 deadlock with Columbus South in the opening game of the season recently.

If Harding had possessed sufficient foresight to have kidnaped one Dick Beltz from Findlay before time for the game the Presidents might have had a chance to play a tight game. With him on the field it wasn't a game. It was a romp. It was just give him the ball and watch him go. Harding might have stopped him if they could have gotten close enough to him but they couldn't even do that. He could run circles around any man on the Harding team and incidentally around most any other high school football player.

Blocking Is Help

He was aided considerably by some superb blocking on the part of Brandman and the rest of the backs but he didn't need any help once he got as far as the line of scrimmage. He simply cut over to the side and left the opposition far behind in one whirlwind dash for the goal line.

Beltz was in the game for something like two of the four periods. In this time he romped across the Harding goal line six times for 36 points and then just by way of emphasizing his ability, booted four extra points. Probably the only reason he didn't kick the other two is because he didn't try. He let some one else do it. However, 40 points in two quarters isn't a bad afternoon's labor. Not exactly.

There isn't any use elaborating on how the points were scored. As long as the first string lineup of Findlay was on the field, six point excursions across the Harding goal line were just as regular as the landlord is for the rent. When the second team was in there was a battle for every inch of gain.

Presidents in Drive

Harding outgained Findlay in one period of the game, the second. In the frame the Presidents put on a smashing offensive that carried the ball from near their own 15 yard line to the Findlay 15 yard stripe. Here a fumble coupled with a 15 yard penalty, lost the ball to Findlay. Harding collected 62 yards from scrimmage in this period against 22 for the winning combination. In all other periods the Red and Black were hopelessly outclassed as far as gains from scrimmage were concerned.

Bob Mautz and Carol Caris, two boys who before yesterday had never played in the Harding backfield, were the shining lights for Harding. Both showed a lack of experience but despite this were the only dependable ground gainers on the Red and Black squad. Caris drew the praise of Findlay critics for his ability to run back punts and return kickoffs. Accorded the same blocking which was given Beltz of Findlay he would undoubtedly turn in some sensational dashes.

Ashland Beats Redmen 12-6 To Lead Circuit

Score By Quarters

Ashland	12	0	0	0	12

Playing the last half of the game in a veritable quagmire of mud, Ashland High school chalked up its second consecutive North Central Ohio league victory yesterday, beating Bucyrus 12-6. The victory gives the Hilltoppers undisputed lead in the circuit for at least a week. Mansfield has the same percentage, 1000, but has played only one game.

Ashland wasted no time in getting the scoring under way as the game started yesterday. Jesson, left halfback for the winners plucked the ball out of the air on the first kickoff and raced 80 yards to a touchdown. The try for point failed.

McDaniel added another six points to the Ashland score in the first period after a series of line smashes had carried the ball from near mid field. The try for extra point also failed on the second score.

Ashland scored no more after the opening period, although on several occasions in the second half the Hilltoppers threatened seriously.

The lone Bucyrus tally came in the third period. Bucyrus came back strong for the second half and swept the Ashland defense before it in a high powered drive for a touchdown. Mixing end runs with off tackle thrusts Gene Talbott brilliant Bucyrus quarterback, engineered the only touchdown of the game for the Redmen.

Rain and a sloppy field conspired to stop all consistent ground gaining after Bucyrus had scored in the third. Both teams resorted to punting frequently as attempts to gain ground on running plays was impossible.

Nick Dolby and Gene Talbott, opposing quarterbacks, were the dominating figures of the game, excepting for the first minute when Jesson turned in his 80-yard dash to score.

BOZINIS RETURNS IN MONDAY MAT SHOW

Wrestles Jack Murphy In Semi-Final of Reed-Williams Go at Shovel.

An old "favorite" of Marion wrestling fans will return to action for the first time during the indoor season on next Monday night at Shovel gym when Nick Bozinis, the New Jersey Greek demon, tackles Jack Murphy, towering Denver lightheavyweight in the the two-fall, 45-minute limit semi-final of the weekly mat show at the gym.

The riotous, bullet-headed Greek has been the center of innumerable stormy scenes here in the past and despite the fact that he'd rather start a rough house out of a perfectly normal wrestling match than sit himself down to a feast, Bozinis is always welcomed here.

In Murphy he'll be tackling a newcomer to this section of the country, a man who brings a reputation of being one of the toughest lightheavies in the Rocky Mountain sector of the country.

Headlining Monday night's program will be Robin Reed the great Pacific coast welterweight who so thrilled local mat fans with his sensational victory over Jack Domar here last Monday night. Reed will clash with the veteran eastern welterweight, Alex Williams of New York City, former wrestling coach of the New York Athletic club.

FORMER CUB OWNER VICTIM OF STROKE

Charles Webb Murphy Succumbs in Chicago, Ending Colorful Career.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 17—Charles Webb Murphy, former owner of the Chicago Cubs, who boasted he had "run a shoestring into a million," is dead.

Murphy, 63, died late yesterday, the victim of a stroke of apoplexy suffered last June.

He owned the Cubs during the famous "Tinker to Evers to Chance" days, and during his eight-year reign, the club won two world championships, in 1907 and 1908, four National league titles, finished second twice and third in two seasons. He was one of the most picturesque characters of the sport, and often engaged in bitter quarrels with the powers of organized baseball.

Starting his career as a sports writer in Cincinnati, Murphy became publicity director for the New York Giants. While affiliated with the Giants, he learned the Cubs could be purchased, and induced the late Charles P. Taft, former Cincinnati publisher, to advance him $105,000 to buy the club in 1913. Murphy sold his interests for the reported sum of $700,000.

He was born in Wilmington, O. and is survived by his widow Mrs. Louise Murphy, and his father, John Murphy of Wilmington.

CADETS FAVORED TO STOP VICTORY RUSH OF CRIMSON ELEVEN

26,000 To See Harvard's Return to West Point for Grid Battle.

By The Associated Press

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 17—For the first time in twenty-one years, Harvard led by Head Coach Eddie Casey and Captain Barry Wood, returned to West Point today to do battle with Army's Cadets.

Michie stadium was expected to be packed to its capacity of 26,000 the biggest "home" turn-out since the Nebraska game in 1929.

As a special concession, the Cadet football squad was excused from dress parade but the players were obliged to respond to reveille at 5:50 a. m., and wade through morning sessions with calculus and trigonometry before turning their thoughts to plans for stopping Harvard's reverses or blocking Crimson passes.

Both teams came up to this game with unblemished records. The Cadets were slight favorites.

The Crimson has not beaten Army since relations were resumed at Cambridge in 1928. The past three games show two cadet victories and a spectacular 20-20 tie on a day that found Barry Wood and Red Cagle in the spotlight.

YALE MAKES FIRST TRIP TO MID-WEST

CHICAGO, Oct. 17—Yale made its first appearance on a midwestern gridiron today against Chicago to pay honor to Amos Alonzo Stagg Sr., Chicago's coach and one of its earliest and greatest athletic heroes, as well as to seek a football triumph.

Yale was a mild favorite, chiefly because of the elusive Albie Booth, but Chicago noted for giving the old man victories he most desires, was believed capable of not only giving Eli a real battle, but possibly of accomplishing an upset triumph.

Nothing less than a six can give you built-in smoothness

The whole question was settled long ago—as to how many cylinders it takes in a motor car engine to give satisfactory smoothness. Science definitely established the fact that at least six are necessary. And today, the public accepts the multi-cylinder engine in the same way that it accepts 4-wheel brakes, parallel-mounted springs and every other principle of proved and acknowledged superiority. Everybody knows that nothing less than a six can give you built-in smoothness.

This general acceptance of the multi-cylinder idea has had a great deal to do with the fact that the Chevrolet, month after month, during 1931, has been the largest selling automobile. For Chevrolet is a six.

Today, this six-cylinder smoothness and dependability are within reach of every new car buyer. For Chevrolet has produced a quality car, powered it with a firmly-mounted six-cylinder motor—engineered it to run at less expense for gas, oil and upkeep than any other car—and priced it right down among the very lowest-priced cars in the market.

Twenty beautiful models at prices ranging from $475 to $675

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meat, Grain, Livestock

The leading special on local markets today seemed to be that of Florida grapefruit, which some dealers were offering at two for 15 cents. The fruit is of good quality, it is reported, and the demand has been steady. Head lettuce at eight cents a head was another special at some markets. The supply is being built up by the approach of cooler weather and the demand is increasing. This lettuce is of good quality.

Dealers report that they expect to see the withdrawal of other green vegetables from the market in a short time. Green beans are light on the market now, with many dealers asking 25 cents for three pounds. The quality is mediocre, they report.

The supply of kraut cabbage is still plentiful with the demand remaining heavy, dealers say. The price varies slightly but most dealers are asking from 95 to 95 cents for 100 pounds

GRAINS MOVE IN UPTREND

Stock Market Advances Help Price of Wheat on Chicago Pit.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, Oct. 17—Grains tended upward early today, helped by stock market advances. Commission house purchasing of wheat was active, with selling confined largely to profit taking. Opening ½@¾ cent higher, wheat continued firm Corn started unchanged to ¼ up and later rose all around.

Indications pointed to continued good export wheat business from North America, making more than 10 000 000 bushels worked this week An additional incentive to bulls was a report that drought in eastern Washington had become so acute the outlook was for no fall seeding of wheat this season

Abrupt falling off in corn receipts gave independent strength to the corn market Chicago arrivals of corn today were only 96 cars, compared with 279 a week ago and 150 on the corresponding day last year. Oats reflected firmness of wheat and corn Provisions kept steady, duplicating the action of hog values.

But business, publishings and writings may thrive, although employment is not without perilous situations There may be benefits from elders or friendly women A child born on this day should be energetic, versatile, adaptable and progressive, although perhaps given to intrigues or crafty ways and means.

For Monday, Oct. 19.

MONDAY'S astrological forecast indicates a rather routine order of events, with the social, artistic, domestic or romantic affairs engaging the attention rather than active and practical ventures. Private or secret correspondence of an intrigue may be of interest.

Welfare Society To Make Drive for Used Clothing

Collection of Wearing Apparel for City's Needy This Winter Will Be Made Saturday, Oct. 24; Boy Scouts Will Aid in Work.

Saturday, Oct. 24 may be somebody's birthday or wedding anniversary or it may mark the date of some other equally important event in the lives of Marion citizens but those interested in the city's needy and those in charge of the commissary department of the Family Welfare society it will be a day of giving and collecting clothing to stock the shelves of the commissary established on the third floor of the Y. M. C. A. building.

Plans for the establishment and operation of the commissary have been completed by those in charge and the work will be carried on in practically the same manner as last year. A marked improvement has been made over last year in the grouping of the articles with the installing of shelves, tables and racks in the large room to the front of the building and also in providing access to the commissary. The commissary may be reached direct from the office of Mrs. Jane Alexander, who is in charge of the investigating department, by means of a stairway leading to the third floor. At the rear of the large room occupied by the clothing department in the shoe repair department. All the rooms are well lighted and ventilated and afford ample space for caring for the applicants.

Boy Scout troops under the direction of Scout executive Arthur S. Brooks are adding their bit by distributing cards carrying the appeal for clothing in a house to house canvass today. Their work will continue until next Saturday when they will assist in the collection of the clothing.

An appeal also will be made through the churches Sunday as pastors have been requested to mention the drive in the church announcements.

A tentative date for the opening of the commissary has been set for Oct. 28, allowing time for sorting, mending and arranging the clothing, it is announced. E. J. Schoenlaub is chairman of the work in the commissary and distribution of clothing will again be in charge of Miss Alice Hane assisted by Mrs Frank Grubaugh.

"We realize that citizens of Marion and vicinity gave and gave generously last year," Mr. Schoenlaub said today in discussing the work, "but circumstances are such that it is going to mean that they must give again this year, not only from their attics, which have been fairly stripped, but from their clothes closets, if the city's needy is to be cared for adequately throughout the winter months."

Plans for collecting the clothing next Saturday are in charge of Scout Executive Brooks who is arranging for a number of trucks to be routed over the city and Boy Scouts will be stationed on the various streets to load the contributions. Routings of the trucks will be announced later. C. F. Bronson is in charge of the trucks. Information regarding contributions for the commissary may be had by telephoning 1863

For instance, the budget gives to schools $97,706,665, to police $62,917,728. Hospitals get $20,406,390.

Ninety-seven millions to fight ignorance, eighty-three millions to fight crime and disease. Eventually, education, if it is the right kind, will conquer crime and disease, although we shan't live to see it.

Fortunately, diseases do not bribe the doctors, which explains why hospitals need only twenty millions.

FARM GROUPS SEND LETTER TO BOARD

Make Economy Recommendations to County Budget Commission.

Declaring "we are in financial distress as farm people," legislative committees of the Marion County Farm bureau and the Pomona grange have prepared recommendations for economy for the county budget commission, and have forwarded copies of these to members of the commission, County Auditor Earl E. Thomas, County Treasurer R. C. Smallwood and Prosecutor R. M. Wilhelm.

It has asked that the recommendations be kept in mind when the commission meets to fix tax rates for 1932.

The recommendations follow:

"Because of drastic reductions in the income of farmers, we request a one-half mill tax reduction in the county.

"Bills from the state and county welfare agencies for food and clothing should, because of the recognized low prices, be much less than during the past year. The medical services of these institutions require especial attention.

"We believe it to be the patriotic duty of our county officials to voluntarily make a salary adjustment in keeping with the times.

"We believe that by cooperation between the various divisions of county government, a number of positions could be dispensed with entirely.

"We desire that the letter of the law be followed minutely by each and every department in submitting their budgets.

"Our attention is directed to the increasing delinquencies, and we earnestly request that the means of collection allowed by law be followed in correcting this evil.

"In reference to the school and health portions of tax funds we urge you to follow a course of closest economy.

"We are for a 'pay as you go' policy. We believe this is not a time to contract debts.

"We are informed that the revised allocation of gasoline tax money will give each township $2,300 for road and bridge purposes and doubt whether any request above this amount should be granted. It also occurs to us that the requests for general township funds are not based on accurately known needs.

"We suggest that you inform the various welfare departments of the county that purchase food, that the Marion County Farm bureau and Marion county granges are ready to cooperate with them in furnishing food direct from the farm, to make the tax dollar go farther."

mere suggestion of which would cause a strong backfire against the president and congress.

Statement at Conference

The President had knowledge of these facts when he met newspapermen in his Friday conference and read to them a prepared statement.

"In times when the income of the people is reduced," said the President, "and when taxes or loans may stifle economic recovery there is only one course of sound fiscal policy, and that is to reduce the expenditures of the government to the last cent consonant with the obligation of the government."

Before him, the President has the statement of the treasury showing a deficit for the first three months of the present fiscal year since July 1, totaling $502,166,800. This is approximately $485,000,000 more than it was for the same period of last year, when the 12 months deficiency amounted to nearly a billion dollars.

The President plans to lay before congress a 1933 budget stripped of every "cent consonant with the obligations of the government," as indicated in his statement.

In an effort to bring expenditures and revenues into closer relationship he has demanded that every principal government officer revise downward estimates for the next fiscal year. Meritorious and unmeritorious projects alike are to be shelved.

Departing from his prepared statement, the President injected a belief that improved conditions were in the offing. He said it was difficult to estimate now for expenditures to be made after next July 1, when better times could be expected.

WORLD AWAITING JAPAN'S DECISION

Vital Question Is Whether Opinion of Others Will Be Defied.

Tokyo administration likely will have to face a serious situation.

A spokesman for the Japanese foreign office said: "Tokyo still has very grave doubts as to the propriety or strict correctness of the league's decision—that is, the question of whether the American observer rightly or wrongly is entitled to sit in the council sessions. Therefore the government has every hope that some sensible way will be found eventually to satisfy all parties."

COUNCIL IN SESSION

Manchurian Problem Considered in Private Negotiations.

By The Associated Press

GENEVA, Oct. 17—Strengthened by America's participation, the council of the League of Nations returned to private negotiation today to store peace in troubled Manchuria.

Consul General Prentiss B. Gilbert, the American delegate, was the center of attention as efforts went forward under the direction of Chairman Aristide Briand to persuade China and Japan to compose their differences for the sake of world security.

Although Japan opposed the project when first suggested, it was believed likely the council would formulate a neutral commission to go to Manchuria and examine the situation at close range. Such a body would be empowered to arrange for the withdrawal of Japanese troops and the protection of Japanese lives and property against irresponsible Chinese.

Miss Lee was charged with having smashed 18 panes of glass at the home of Ivan St. Johns, magazine editor, when she was refused permission to see her former husband, Luther Reed, film director, who was attending a gathering there.

DIVORCE LEGALIZED
By The Associated Press

MADRID, Oct. 17—A provision permitting the granting of divorce to either men or women for "just cause" was incorporated in the new Spanish constitution today. The national assembly by a vote of 169 to 153 thus overthrew laws against divorce which had been in effect for centuries and placed women on an equal footing with men in the regulation of marital relations.

POLITICAL COMEDY BECOMES INVOLVED

By The Associated Press

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 17—The cast of what Governor and Senator-Elect Huey P. Long calls Louisiana's "political comedy" is growing more extensive and more confused.

Involved in the turmoil today were three claimants to the job of governor, three to that of lieutenant-governor and two to that of senator.

The leader in the gubernatorial insurrection, Dr. Paul N. Cyr, conferred with his attorney today on the ouster suit he said he would file to get the governor's job.

LICENSE PLATES ON BANDIT CAR STOLEN

Only Clue Obtained by Police in Probe of Store Robbery.

A report that the license plates on the car used in the holdup of the Columbia street Kroger store yesterday morning had been stolen in Delaware has provided police their only tangible clue in the robbery. Between $140 and $150 was taken.

Entering on the pretense of buying cigarets, the two men covered A. C. Stover, manager of the store and Guy Stover, a clerk, with pistols and after removing the contents of the cash register, forced the manager to open the safe.

The robbers were followed as far as the Harding memorial by John Bishop, restaurantman, who entered the store just as the two were departing. He gave up the chase when the car speeded toward Delaware. Telephone calls to both Delaware and Columbus police failed to lead to the robbers' capture.

MARION MAN NAMED TO INSTITUTE POST

F. Leo Smith Becomes Technical Secretary of Service Department.

F. Leo Smith of Washington, D. C., son of Mr. and Mrs. S. E. Smith of 241 south High street, has been named technical secretary of the structural service department of the American Institute of Architects there and assumed his duties the first of the month. He will be associated with the Octagon, a publication of the institute.

Mr. Smith is a graduate of the department of architecture of Ohio State university and has had a wide experience in architectural practice and in the formulation of building legislation. For two years he served as assistant chief of the division of factory and building inspection of the department of industrial relations of Ohio, having charge of the administration of the Ohio building code.

From 1924 until 1929 he was employed by the state as technical secretary to the Ohio board of building standards. For the last two years Mr. Smith has been employed by the Portland Cement association as field engineer in northern Ohio. He is also a member of the Cleveland Engineering society.

Local Man Gets Big Yield Here on Potato Crop

What is believed to have been a record, at least in this region, in potato production was established by John Caldwell of 378 Thompson street, this year when he produced 11 bushels of potatoes from two bushels of seed. And not alone in production but in the size of the potatoes, Caldwell believes he has established a record, many of the potatoes, he said yesterday, would weigh a pound and some a pound and a quarter and a pound and a half.

The straw method used in producing the crop, is believed by Mr. Caldwell to have been responsible for the large production. While more satisfactory in the matter of quality, the process requires more time than the method ordinarily used. The potatoes Mr. Caldwell harvested this week from their beds of straw, were planted in April.

In explaining the process he said the seed are placed in the ground with just enough soil to cover them. On top of this is placed a bed of straw from 18 inches to two feet in depth. The straw, while permitting the rain to reach the plant roots, protects the ground from the sun's rays and as a result the ground is always moist.

DISPOSITION OF FAMILY UNSETTLED

Officials Undecided as to Responsibility for Support of Eight.

The problem of county responsibility in the case of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kerr, who were returned to Marion county with seven of their eight children Thursday after being evicted from a home in Fostoria, still faced county commissioners and other county officials today.

No decision has been reached as to whether Seneca or Marion county is responsible for the care of the family. Further investigation of the case is being made to settle the question.

Statements of Kerr that he was working and supporting his wife and two children are being investigated.

Six of the children are still in Marion, five of them in the Marion county children's home and one with the parents. Another of the children is in a private home in Fostoria and one has been sent to relatives in Michigan, according to statements of the parents. The Kerr family was brought here Thursday by Seneca county deputy sheriffs.

ield Takes Owens Under Advisement lown Decision Within Few Days After Reviewing stimony Taken in Two-Day Court Hearing on Divorce Petition.

lean Judge George B. y had under advise- ed testimony given in action of Mrs. Mabel against Clifford A. l Thursday and Fri- e hearing closed late Scofield stated his ld be made within a ter a review of the s been made.

rnoon's session was rincipally with the perty and holdings of most heated argu- afternoon began when d E. Guthery took ex- figures introduced by S. K. Young of New York City, a statistician, to the effect that Osgood stock was reasonably worth $3.79 a share. Mr. Guthery contended the figure should be much higher, and argument about the figures and the tables from which they were compiled began. A valuation figure was not agreed upon.

Mr. Owens was the first to take the stand in the afternoon, testifying in answer to questions of his own attorneys that he gave Mrs. Owens a property in Vernon Heights costing $16,500, another plot of land in Vernon Heights, a Pierce-Arrow automobile costing $3,500, 20 shares of stock in Hotel Harding, a homestead property in Arizona, and half interest in another property in the west.

Mrs. Mary A. Hire, former housekeeper at the Owens home, and James A. Folsom of 1177 east Center street, a close social acquaintance of the Owens family, were called as character witnesses for Mr. Owens. Mrs. Hire testified that Mr. Owens' conduct around the home during the nine months she was employed there was that of a gentleman so far as she could tell. Mr. Folsom stated that his close social associations with Mr. Owens over a period of years made him regard Mr. Owens as a "very clever business man and an asset to the community." He further testified that Mr. Owens had always been kind and generous to his wife in the presence of him and Mrs. Folsom.

Acknowledges Letter

On cross examination by Mrs. Owens' attorneys, Mrs. Hire acknowledged a letter introduced by the attorney in which Mrs. Hire had declined an offer of Mr. Owens to keep house for him during his wife's visit in Arizona. In this letter, she stated she was sorry she couldn't come to "cheer up Jerry," a canary at the Owens home.

At the close of the trial, Mrs. Owens was recalled to the stand to answer a few questions of her own attorneys. Her testimony at this time was that she had made beer in their home at the demand of her husband, and that when he had drunk what he wanted of it she threw the rest away. She also denied that she ever made a suggestion that they become divorced, as her husband charged during testimony earlier in the hearing.

Counsel for Mr. Owens called half a dozen witnesses to attempt to fix the value of Mr. Owens' property and his interests. Johnson Curl, operating an elevator in property owned by Mr. Owens, testified the property he occupied was reasonably worth $30,000. Oliver Hamilton, engaged in the stone business and once a prospective buyer of the Owens quarry, said the quarry was run down and abandoned and that $15,000 would be a "big price" for it. He also testified that another quarry at Rising Sun owned by Owens was worth $2,500.

Values Land

Approximately 500 acres of land owned by Owens is worth from $25 to $50 an acre, George Oriana of 181 Seffner street, testified. He is a real estate dealer. M. C. McNeil of 610 Girard avenue, Osgood Co. executive, testified that $1,000 Osgood debenture bonds were worth $540 on the present market and that the Alloy Cast Steel Co., capitalized at $225,000, had never paid dividends. He also described Mr. Owens as an active, hard working man who gave close attention to his business affairs. In testifying about the Osgood and affiliated industries here, he said none is paying dividends now.

Frank D. Glosser of 650 Mt. Vernon avenue testified that General Excavator Co. stock last sold by him brought $410 a share. He also stated that Mr. Owens gave close attention to business affairs. S. K. Young, the statistician, was the only other witness on valuations.

Virgil Dye, assistant manager of Hotel Harding, was questioned regarding Mr. Owens' conduct at the hotel during cross examination, but did not give definite answers to the questions.

The hearing ended when the defense rested. Neither side submitted arguments.

Russell Knepper and Andrew J. White Jr. of the Columbus law firm of Knepper, White, Smith & Dempsey and F. E. Guthery and Howard Guthery of the law firm of Guthery, Strelitz & Guthery represented Mrs. Owens. Mr. Owens was represented by Grant E. Mouser Sr. and Ben T. Wiant of the law firm of Mouser, Young, Mouser & Wiant, and Fred L. Warner of the law firm of Carhart, Warner & Carhart.

Is End of Age Near?

A SERMONETTE
REV. M. E. WILLIAMSON
Pastor Oakland Evangelical Church

CHRIST said in Luke, Chap. 21, 25-27: "There shall be signs in the sun and in the moon and in the stars; and upon earth distress of nations, with perplexity; the sea and waves roaring; men's hearts failing them for fear, and for looking after those things which are coming on the earth; for the powers of heaven shall be shaken. And then shall they see the Son of Man coming in a cloud with power and great glory. And when these things begin to come to pass, then look up, and lift up your heads; for your redemption draweth nigh."

Now read your dailies and listen to your radio and you will see that "distress of nations" and "men's hearts failing them for fear" is fulfilled before your very eyes. Statesmen are perplexed and can see no way, no permanent way out of the terrible mess into which we have brought ourselves because of our sins. Read Mt. 24 and Lk. 21 and see what we have today in fulfillment of New Testament prophecy. Earthquakes, famines, pestilence, wars, tornadoes, floods and other unusual happenings are taking place in the world with increasing frequency and increasing loss in lives lost and property destroyed. We are crying "Peace, peace," "disarmament," etc. and all the time the nations have better and more war equipment and more men in standing armies than ever and the war threat hangs like a pall over the whole world and men are wondering when war will break out again. What is wrong? What is the cause? Nations and men are trying to get along without God and His Son Jesus Christ who created us and gave Himself on Calvary to redeem us from sin. The Ante-deluvian world forgot God and plunged into sin until God was obliged to step in and stop things. He sent Noah to preach but they would not listen, then He sent the flood and destroyed the world and started it over with righteous men. But they failed God and went into sin. Then He started the great Hebrew nation and after a time they divided and finally, when they sinned and forgot God and became idolators He permitted a heathen king to take them into captivity and from then on He scattered them over the face of the earth. When God sent His Son into the world to die on Calvary His chosen people rejected Him and the Roman armies destroyed Jerusalem. More instances might be cited of nations, and peoples which have witnessed the wrath of a holy God in sending judgments upon them for their sins.

God's great heart of love yearns over His sinning people and He has done His best to save and help us but when we despise His mercies and reject His Son Jesus Christ, we bring upon ourselves His just wrath and condemnation.

The sins of the nations of the world today are ripening them for the terrible judgments of the Almighty. We witness increasing crime and wickedness everywhere. We note the apostasy of the church. This falling away of the church from true faith as one of the signs of the Lord's return. We believe the end of our age is close at hand. Let true christians keep prayed up and working for God and saving the lost; let sinners call a halt, stop sinning and repent and seek the Lord while He may be found.

"Therefore be ye also ready, for in such an hour as ye think not the Son of man cometh."

"SIGNS" SAY TIME READY FOR KRAUT

Cabbage for Making Accompaniment to Spareribs Selling at 98 Cents 100 Lbs.

The continued appearance of unseasonable fruit was one of the outstanding points of the market in the last week. Both cantaloupe and strawberries are regarded as "done for" for this season, yet supplies of both were on the market at the close of the week. The supply of each was limited, however, and dealers were expecting to reach the end shortly. The quality was just fair, they said. Cantaloupes were selling at 10 or 15 cents each and the price of strawberries ranged from 20 to 25 cents a pint. Some dealers offered them at 25 cents a quart.

Right for Kraut

The fact that the "signs" pointed to this week as proper for kraut cabbage brought about an unusual demand. The price remained at 98 cents for 100 pounds. The supply and quality were said to be good.

Continued advance in the price of butter and eggs was shown in activity during the week. Butter is now at about 30 cents a pound and eggs are bringing from 30 to 32 cents a dozen.

The week saw the appearance of two varieties of celery and the gradual disappearance of a third. New York state celery and the Paschal variety came on the market, while the self-blanching type began to be drawn off. The northern Ohio Paschal is selling for 10 cents a bunch with the New York variety at the same price.

Grapefruit Higher

Cauliflower of the Michigan variety was a new arrival and was reported to be of good quality. This article is bringing from 15 to 20 cents a head. The quality of the homegrown cauliflower is not as good as of the out-of-state kind, dealers say. This sells for 10 or 15 cents a head.

Florida grapefruit made a slight advance in price toward the latter part of the week with many dealers selling two for 25 cents. The supply was good throughout the week. Lemons came back on the market after being light for two or three weeks. Most dealers asked 40 cents a dozen. Supply and quality were good during the week, dealers reported.

Josette's Diplomatic Victory.

Josette Laval, nineteen-year-old daughter of Pierre Laval, premier of France, will share the attention that will be given her distinguished father when he arrives in the United States to discuss international problems with President Hoover and the cabinet. It will be recalled how another distinguished visitor from abroad, Ramsay MacDonald, once shared the spotlight with his daughter, Ishbel. She captured America's admiration without a struggle, and came dangerously close to getting more attention than Great Britain's prime minister himself.

Josette considers her father's consent to accompany him a "diplomatic victory and the first step in the emancipation of the French girl." Between the lines, however, there is a hint that it is her personal victory that will be of the greatest service to France. Premier Laval, reports say, is a modest, retiring man. His pictures show that there is nothing in his appearance to command attention. He does not speak English. In short, he will be a hard man for the American public to learn to know. And that is where Josette can be of service.

She can supply the animation he lacks. She can make the interesting comments on American customs and appearances that Americans so dearly love to read. She can be tactfully humorous, if there be an occasion for that sort of thing. She can be photographed. She can make friends while her reserved father is making international policies. The "emancipation of the French girl," as Josette puts it, may serve France more nobly than she can conceive of, in her nineteen-year-old innocence. The United States will learn to like France, because it will like her. Her friendly invasion of the great nation of which she has heard so much is awaited with considerable pleasure.

The Steel Merger Is Off.

Bethlehem Steel Corporation has announced cancellation of the disputed merger contract it held with Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. The action made a clear conclusion to the protracted discussion that had raged since the first merger report early in March, 1930. The "battle of the proxies" and the tense skirmishing on the legal front in Common Pleas Judge David G. Jenkins' courtroom in the Mahoning county courthouse went for a doomed cause, it now appears.

Unfavorable business conditions were given as the cause for cancelling the contract. Bethlehem stock had dropped from over 100 to less than thirty. Youngstown Sheet & Tube stock had dropped from 142 to twenty-two. At the close of business March 7, 1930, the day before the first merger report startled steel interests, one share of Sheet & Tube stock was worth approximately 1.35 shares of Bethlehem. Now, the ratio is reversed.

If unfavorable business conditions are the real cause for cancelling the contract, better business conditions will open the deal again. There is nothing in sight to cause either Bethlehem officials or Sheet & Tube directors to relinquish entirely a plan which both believed was for their common interests. It must be remembered, however, that had the merger contract not been cancelled, court skirmishing was to start all over again with arguments on the injunction granted Cyrus S. Eaton merger opposition halting completion of the deal. There is nothing in sight to cause Mr. Eaton and his associates to change their minds, either.

Relative positions, therefore, remain the same, but there no longer is any immediate likelihood of action. Time and the changing conditions in business that it produces may eliminate the demand for a merger of these two great companies, and again, the demand may be strengthened. Vast changes have been wrought almost overnight in steel before, and may be wrought again. There are no such things as fixed conditions in the steel industry.

Up, Up, Up.

The federal government's fiscal year is less than one-third over. The national deficit, which got off to a running start, already has passed the half-billion mark. Even the hopeful ones admit it will reach at least a billion and a half for the year. "As sure as a pine slips in the treasury department during 1931-32" may be a simile that fiscal experts will repeat a few years hence with more grimness than humor.

The administration is not expected to commit itself on a policy to meet this national emergency until congress convenes in December, and perhaps not even then. The deficit can be approached by two roads—increased taxation and decreased expenditures. Both of them will have to be used, but since increased taxation and politics never are congenial, decreased expenditures will bear the brunt of the early traffic.

The people will range themselves solidly behind the administration in every move to decrease federal expenditures, even if they occasionally defeat their purpose by supporting measures that necessitate unwise appropriations. Since 1900 federal expenditures per capita have increased from $4.64 to $24.37, while receipts have increased only from $7.45 to $27.02. In the long run, the government must live within its income or it will sustain the same fate that any poorly managed business sustains.

In the attempt to reduce expenditures, however, the administration runs into opposition that is as bitter, if not as forceful, as the opposition of the people to increases in taxation. President Hoover has attempted to pinch naval expenditures a little bit, for instance, and the result is common knowledge. The "big navy" element has set up a howl worthy of the supreme trials of judgment day. The public servants, once given power, easily fall into the mistake of imagining that they are the origin of power. They ignore the fact that, if the President is not granted the power to fix the expenses of his own administration, his office is seriously discredited.

The federal deficit is vaulting upwards. The nation stands at the crossroads of a revised fiscal policy. It can not go on borrowing to meet its expenses. It must raise more money from taxation and spend less money for unnecessary functions. It will not be easy to make the readjustments. However, if the hubbub grates on the public pocketbook nerve sufficiently to establish the conviction that lavish expenditures make heavy taxes the treasury mess will have accomplished at least one valuable thing.

President Glenn Frank, of the University of Wisconsin, says that America is crying for leadership that will take the people out of the muddle of depression and the hypocrisy that has come to surround prohibition. Don't be bashful, Glenn! Let the country have the formula of your panacea!

Laboratory Adventures.

Discovery of one of the missing elements, No. 87, may be "one of the greatest discoveries of our time," as acclaimed by the distinguished head of the department of chemistry at Cornell, but it fails to excite general interest. It means far less, as a story, than, say, the discovery of the lost Andree expedition meant in the summer of 1930. Laboratory adventures, despite their importance in this age of dependence on science, are too remote to be understood outside the small circle of scientific explorers.

Jacob Papish, professor of spectroscopy at Cornell university, discovered No. 87. Those who recall the periodic classification table of the elements that hangs in every chemistry recitation room and laboratory may need to be reminded that only ninety-two elements, up to the heaviest, uranium, can possibly exist. Up to now, ninety have been known, though three of that number are only known with certainty from distinctive lines in their X-ray spectra. The two which have eluded discovery are No. 87, an alkali metal, and No. 85, a halogen, or an element which forms salts by direct union with metals.

Professor Papish's spectograph of material which he believed might contain No. 87 showed a grouping of vertical lines not hitherto observed. These lines were the signature of missing element No. 87, which never has been seen but which has been trapped into leaving what corresponds in criminology to a complete record of Bertillon measurements. This evidence, needless to say, is priceless. The small amount of material hiding No. 87 will be guarded day and night.

To Professor Papish, to his understanding intimates in science, to all persons with the characteristics of true scientific explorers, this is an unparalleled adventure. There will be no cheering crowds, no vaudeville engagements, no prolonged attention in the press, but there will be the quiet satisfaction of knowing that something important has been accomplished. That's all the laboratory adventurer seeks, or gets.

The Dollar Is Firm.

When Great Britain suspended its gold standard, the pound sterling gave place to the dollar as the key unit of monetary exchange. The international financial center moved from London to New York City.

More recently an amazing kind of speculation has developed in Europe on a fall in the value of the American dollar. Monetary wolves of the unpopular variety that made money gambling on the fall of the German mark and the French franc several years ago, and more recently on the British pound, have been making most of their opportunities to take advantage of depression timidity by circulating false and misleading rumors.

The plan for extension of aid to banking institutions, for instance, probably was interpreted by them, not as a sign of strength, but as a sign of weakness. Rumors have been afloat in Europe for some time that the United States was going to abandon the gold standard.

It seems ridiculous that any one should entertain the notion that currency of a nation possessing almost half the world's gold supply will depreciate. The money speculators abroad are wearing themselves out on a false scent if they are waiting for the dollar to fall and fall prey to them.

WELCOME TO OUR COUNTRY

Our First Signal Service.

BY J. H. GALLOWAY.

Our first signal service established here was devised by Lucas Sullivant, founder of Franklinton, in 1812. Its purpose was to secure information as to the movements of the Indians northwest of Franklinton. Harrison had subdued the Indians the year before at Tippecanoe, but Tecumseh, with the outbreak of the war with Great Britain, saw a new chance to renew the fighting with a better opportunity for success.

Franklinton was regarded as an outpost on the verge of the line of hostilities and a foray of the British and Indians upon it was feared. The few settlers northwest of Franklinton were nervous and on several occasions alarmed by false reports of the approach of the Indians, had left their homes and fled to Franklinton for safety. Imparting their fear to the people of Franklinton, the latter at one time began work on a ditch about the old courthouse in Franklinton and constructing a stockade about the building so as to make it a citadel within which he people might retire for defense if the village should be attacked. The work never was finished.

Freeman's Chronicle of September 5, 1812, carried the news of the surrender of General William Hull at Detroit and the people of Franklinton again were fearful of attack. It looked as though there was nothing now to prevent the British and the Indians from advancing down through Ohio. It was extremely desirable that the people of Franklinton be advised of hostile movements.

It was in this status of matters that Sullivant established his crude information service. Securing the services of two experienced scouts he located them about half way between Franklinton and the British outposts, prepared to rush to Franklinton in case they heard of any hostile movements in this direction. They were along lines that the enemy would in all probability follow if he came. One was stationed at Zanesfield in Logan county. The other farther east and north. Fortunately no test of this information service ever became necessary.

Editorial Opinion.

AN AMERICAN FIVE-YEAR PLAN.

President Hoover will suspend the navy building schedule for this year. One reason is economy. The other is that Mr. Hoover is not interested in the navy. He is interested in pacificist conferences, in pacificism because, very likely, he had a Quaker upbringing; in international conferences because he was accustomed to working in the international field before he became President.

For these reasons economy, which might deflate the federal government to its proper shape and size if the economy worked on the fatty protuberances of its anatomy, will take its heaviest and probably its only considerable toll of one of the services truly federal. If the federal government will not provide for the navy the nation will not have a fleet.

The states can do without the department of agriculture, the department of labor, the department of commerce, the prohibition bureau of the department of justice and half a hundred other bureaus in other departments in which is deposited the fattening of federal government. The extraneous functions of this government apparently are safe from pruning or from what they really deserve, destruction. Retrenchment is to fall first upon national defense, which was one of the few essential reasons for forming the federal union. The common security which brought the states together is the first thing to go down when their common government finds its budget unbalanced by payments on accounts it never should have opened and by the conduct of business it never should have undertaken.

Hysterical Americans demand a plan which will prove that the United States is not less intelligent that the Russian soviets. Here's a "Five-Year Plan" for America: Begin the obliteration of Washington departments and bureaus. It will take at least five years to exterminate the worthless federal government functions of interference and intervention, but by beginning now the bureaucrats can be eased back into private life without injustice. They can be chipped off the public payrolls gradually and pensioned or sent back home. The useless departments can be closed room by room until nothing remains but for the last secretary and the last bureau chief to take his hat and go on about his private business if he has any.

Then the United States will be a trim young figure of a government attending to duties which are strictly federal, with ample funds for all its proper obligations. Now it is a sprawling behemoth with a diminishing brain pan, shedding its armor plate, like a prehistoric fool, because it is too lazy to carry it and too shortsighted to see the need of it.—Chicago Tribune.

A Regular Check.

Senator Tydings says he favors a federal salary cut, but to apply only to congressmen. He does not expect it to be adopted, which is the safest bet we have heard. — Washington Post.

No Universal "Cure."

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

Almost every one of us at some time or another has suffered from a cold. Some of us are rarely free from colds. I can think of no minor ailment that causes so much discomfort.

Colds as a rule are caused by "catching" the germ from a person already having a cough or cold. The borrowed germ settles in a weakened area, such as the tonsils, throat, nasal passages, mouth or nasal sinuses. Pretty soon the trouble begins.

The popular belief is that colds are caused by drafts. A cold is a disease of germ origin. Exposure to drafts, the presence of germs and lowered resistance of the body—all these combined will lead to a cold. When we are unduly tired, the body resistance is lowered and then we are more susceptible to infection by the germs of bacteria always afloat in the air.

Most people try to "doctor" their own colds. They have some special tablet or gargle that some one has told them about. They have faith in these, but alas! drugs do not cure a cold. They may relieve the symptoms and perhaps shorten the duration of the ailment, but they never cure. Quack remedies and "catarth cures" should be avoided. They are rarely beneficial and too often dangerous. The taking of whisky and heavy doses of quinine is a common practice which is not to be advised in the treatment of a cold.

The first thing to do when you have a cold is to take your temperature. If it is over ninety-nine degrees, go to bed. If you are miserably ill it is advisable to call your physician.

Treatment of a cold by a physician, lessens the discomfort, shortens its duration, and decreases the danger of complications. This is done by the application of remedies that are demanded by your individual condition. There is no universal and ready made cure.

As a matter of fact there is very little that can be done except to stay in bed. Eat lightly and drink at least one glass of water every hour. If you do not remain in bed it is best to stay indoors. The room should be kept free from draft, but it must be thoroughly ventilated.

The whole body should be kept warm, particularly the feet. This is one reason why it is wise to stay in bed. Most persons dread the thought of remaining home and away from their work merely because of a cold. But one day in bed will often cure a cold completely. Neglect of this precaution may lead to the loss of several days from work.

The common belief that one should "stuff a cold and starve a fever," has misled many people. This statement if followed will probably lead to a temperature and not cure the cold. Food should be simple and nutritious, confined largely to fruits, vegetables and salads.

There are many advertised remedies. Some of them are harmless enough and perhaps do decrease the misery of a cold. I shall not venture to speak of them, because I firmly believe drugs should not be prescribed except by a physician who has personal knowledge of the condition.—Copyright, 1931, by Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

Skyscrapers in the Sahara.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

An oasis that resembles a modern city; that is Siwa, luxurious place of plenty in the midst of an ocean of sand.

This oasis, which has a skyline resembling the skyscraper cities of the West, has been so inaccessible and its inhabitants so hostile that very few persons have ever visited it.

It lies 600 miles west of Cairo and the trip from Mersah Matruh, nearest city to Siwa, takes from seven to ten days by camel caravan. An automobile can now make the journey in a day.

As one approaches this strange city, the first glimpse of its sunwhitened heights shimmering against the azure sky makes the beholder feel he is gazing at a mirage that will disappear before his startled eyes. Surely, there can be no skyscrapers in the Sahara!

But it is real, indeed, and the unusual sight unfolds before the incredulous eyes of the traveler as he nears the city.

In the midst of an ocean of sand, in the heart of the great Sahara, there rises a cluster of skyscrapers. Offering even greater surprise is the manner in which the skyscrapers of the desert are built.

The strangest feature of Siwa is the similarity of the homes to the apartment-houses of the Western world. Here, for generations, families have been building their houses one atop the other. The mud walls now reach heights of more than 200 feet.

The principal support of the dwindling population of Siwa are the dates. Yellow, red and brown, of a particularly luscious flavor, they are known as the finest in Egypt.

The secret of the lush plenty in the oasis, which is six miles wide and thirty-five miles long, lies in the numerous springs which provide an abundant supply of cold, sparkling water.

The Siwans are believed to be of Berber descent; they are not, like most inhabitants of the Sahara, Arabs. Some are fair and others of negroid features.

Sheiks, landowners and merchants compose one class of the population, and farmers and servants, the other. It is unusual that the wealthy class do not display their good fortune in their manner of living. Indeed, it is hard to distinguish the landowner's abode from that of his poorest helper. The reason simply is miserliness.

On the whole, the Siwans lead happy lives. There is nothing for the rich to do but watch the dates grow. The lot of the poor is to gather the dates and press oil from olives.

The natives have no desire or urge to be on the go and neither are they bored. There is an existence of waiting merely for the next day's leisure.

Little effort is made to put to use the land which could be made fertile by irrigation. The springs, which provide an abundance of wonderfully cool water, number more than 200.

A few of the pools are more than fifty feet in diameter and all are surrounded by palms. The water is so clear that one can see the bubbling sources thirty feet below the surface.

It appears that the Siwans are degenerating and that they will not endure as a people much longer. The birth rate is considerably below the death rate.

Aside from the interest of the oasis to the more or less casual traveler, it is close upon a treasure store for the archeologist. In the stretches of the desert to the south of Siwa are dunes and buttes and marine deposits with numberless fossils, from which the development of the ages can be read.

A Washington Daybook.

BY HERBERT PLUMMER.

Washington, Oct. 17—It's difficult to tell at this date where the best "show" will be during the seventy-second congress—in the senate or in the house.

Those who frequent the galleries will have a hard time figuring out where to go. There'll be fireworks at both ends of the capitol, what with the close division in both houses and the highly controversial issues on the program.

Heretofore their choice has been a comparatively easy one. The senate offered the chief attraction. Not since the overthrow of "Uncle Joe" Cannon as speaker has the house bulked in the public eye to anything like the extent the senate continuously does.

The reason lay in the difference of rules governing each body.

In the senate a member can start a verbal riot almost any time he chooses. In the house, a representative must obtain unanimous consent before doing such a thing.

As a result, nothing unexpected or thrilling was likely to happen in the house. Proceedings could be reasonably well forecast for any day.

Debate was carried on with time divided between the Republicans and Democrats, and applications for allotment of time had to be filed in advance by members wishing to speak.

Some sort of special rule machinery is necessary in the house. With a membership of 435, all of whom are potential speakers, a do-as-you-please method of procedure like that in the senate would probably bring disastrous results. Essential measures might never be passed.

But nevertheless, the public generally and the press flock to the senate when they want excitement. Most of the time house galleries sit and stare in bored fashion at what is going on down below. Only a half-dozen reporters or so may be observed in the space built to take care of one or two hundred.

It's different in the senate. Usually the galleries are filled. When something particularly interesting is being considered, the lines outside resemble the crowd at a movie palace.

Only the White House row and the section reserved for diplomats in the galleries are vacant as a regular thing.

It is remarkable how news of a flurry on the floor scatters over the capital. It travels in some mysterious fashion, and within a very short while the public galleries and press section are literally overflowing with people.

The house will probably get its share of the men in the coming congress. There is a threatened liberation of rules. This added to the close division of membership, the speakership fight, et al, promises to draw 'em back.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. MCINTYRE.

New York, Oct. 17—Purely personal piffle: I never hear a Swiss yodeler that I do not wish I could yodel, too. You know, surprise your friends! I have written forewords and introductions to twenty-seven books. At the moment, Ghandhi is my mind is the most important citizen of the world.

I'm always seeing a Chinaman. I don't think will last until he gets home. I never knew an air-tight grammarian who could write an interesting sentence. And precisionists who say "Between you and I" make me self conscious. I am one of three who knows a prominent man blondines his hair. It is fiery red, which he hates.

A tenth of my personal mail returns on account of faulty addresses. I once stood under a tree hit by lightning without a shock. A calf twenty feet away was killed. I was taught pool by Gil Patten, author of the Frank Merriwells. I often mistake Wellington Cross for Earl Benham, who do not look alike.

I once went to St. Louis to spend twenty-four hours and stayed seven weeks. Often, shaving, I wonder how it would feel to cut my throat. Premature gray hair came from fear of being fired on newspapers. With an extraordinary gift collection, I have carried but two canes in five years.

Every girl I know named Clare or Claire is remarkably beautiful. My favorite beauty of the moment is a hat check girl at the Waldorf. I like to walk through slums on hot nights. Current movie indifferences are for Clark Gable and Mitzi Green. My newest screen love is Madge Evans.

One of my favorite restaurants was Letan's, an obscure Hungarian place on Second avenue, now closed. A horror of hospitals keeps me from visiting sick friends. Nothing stirs my admiration like a sleight of hand trick. I'm that sort. The most colorful first night was the present "Scandals."

I love the smell of liquid shoe polish and invariably obey such signs as "Please have exact change ready." And look where the arrow points. All my life I've wanted to live over a store so I could hang out a window at night. My wife never rouged her cheeks.

I snitch dabs of perfumes in strange homes if no one is looking. Broadway is the world's most cheaply obvious street. My most touching letter was from the aged mother of ten children who said: "No one ever wrote me before." I like canned fruit better than fresh. No rendezvous touches the old Knickerbocker bar at 5 p. m. My favorite color scheme is gray collared shirts with deep purple ties. I'm afraid of men who wear caps on dark streets.

A friend once called at my hotel at 3 a. m. to tell me he was skipping to Europe with another's wife and $12,000, not his own. I persuaded him to return the money and wait. Later they were married and neither speaks to me. I do not enjoy smoking out doors and have a secret admiration for professional gamblers. But all I meet are dull witted. I think Lionel is the most talented of the Barrymores. Yet I would rather watch George M. Cohan in a bum play than all the Barrymores in a masterpiece.

I like to raise Pullman blinds at night to peek out. I was a waiter two nights at the Manhattan in Cincinnati. And solicited advertising for months on Broadway without an order. Don Clarke once phoned: "Listen, ——, I'm quitting my newspaper job to write novels." I told him not to be a fool. And he has written five best sellers in a row. The most beautiful country place ever visited was W. R. Coe's on Long Island. I eat only fattening foods but my weight has not changed in ten years. Nobody plucks a banjo like Eddie Peabody. I invariably think of appendicitis when swallowing grape seeds. Few can live in New York ten years and be satisfied elsewhere. Helped Popularize Science.

BY ARCHIBALD HENDERSON.

One of the most valuable figures in science in his day, was Buffon, famous as a naturalist. In the strict sense of the word, he was not a scientist; for he was neither an experimenter, a research student nor even a systematic observer of nature. But he had an ardent love of natural history; wrote in a masterly and fascinating style; and was an indefatigable accumulator and popularizer of knowledge about natural history. He had an exceedingly active and speculative mind; and advanced many ideas far in advance of his age. Among the most notable of his speculations were those foreshadowing the evolutionary theories of the succeeding generation.

George Louis Leclerc, Comte de Buffon, was born at Montbard in central France on September 7, 1707. After receiving a liberal education in the schools, he traveled in England and Italy. Although his father wished him to follow his own profession, that of the law, Buffon turned his attention to physics, mathematics and agriculture.

In the year, 1739, when he became a member of the Academy of Science, he was appointed keeper of the royal gardens and museum, in Paris, which later became the Jardin des Plantes and the Museum of Natural History. In a large house located in the botanical gardens, he spent a part of each year; and during the summer he wrote industriously at his ancestral home in Montbard.

Buffon's principal work was his natural history, which bore the title "Histoire Naturelle, Generale et Particuliere." This monumental work was the labor of many years, being published between 1749 and 1804, many of the volumes appearing long after his death. It covered the space of forty-four volumes, and is one of the most comprehensive attempts to include the entire contents of a single science ever carried out. Buffon lacked the power of discrimination, and included considerable matter in this immense work which was not trustworthy or sound. However, he brought together between covers, in a single comprehensive work, virtually everything then known about natural history. Buffon wrote in an attractive style, which often attained to brilliancy; and he indulged in many speculations regarding the great mass of data he had accumulated.

Buffon undoubtedly maintained the doctrine of organic evolution as against the theory of special creation. We read in "Book of Popular Science:" He saw and taught that the animal kingdom reveals a succession of forms, derived from one another; and we owe to him the bold and plausible idea that the first forms of life were naturally produced upon our planet in the ocean, and in the polar regions, where the water would first be cool enough for life as we can imagine it to exist.

Buffon was also notable for a careful study of the distribution of various fauna upon the earth's surface. Widely famous and admired, he died in Paris, on April 16, 1788.—Copyright, 1931, International Feature Service, Inc.

Be Thankful You Live in Marion

By The Schaffner-Queen Co.

The Mortality tables of the United States for the purpose of figuring average death rate per thousand population, is made up from the sixty largest cities, representing as they do a cross section of the country. The average is taken over a period of fifteen years next preceding.

A study of the records of our local Registrar ALWAYS shows Marion to be well under that average in number of deaths.

Marion has a healthful climate, is blessed with skillful physicians and surgeons, has a splendid hospital and efficient nurses, all contributing to this lower average and all of which constitute one large reason why we are fortunate who live in Marion

Quilt Patches

OUR grandmothers, those dear old souls, would never rest in peace, and I am sure that is just what they are doing, if they were to behold what I did so very recently Imagine, if you can risk stretching your imagination that far, of our having reached a day when quilt blocks were on sale in department stores, and were really selling It doesn't take an octogenarian to recall those magic scrap bags filled to overflowing with the most colorful and gorgeous array of "pieces" stored away against a day when time would permit them being worked up into a bed covering, and what gorgeous things they were, too. And what fun it was, after the quilt was finished, to sprawl out on it and point out one by one, your dress, the baby's dress, grandma's apron, mother's dressing sacque and perhaps a sample of the first shirt ever owned by the young man of the house. The stitches didn't mean so much then but look at them now and try, just try to duplicate them.

Carrying Coals

TALK about carrying coals to Newcastle, (and here's a confession. I have always had a yen to use that phrase) it took a trio of convention-bound folks to pull the prize one Thrills of a journey, a half day off and what not doesn't keep one from getting hungry and the prospect of grabbing a lunch between trains always looked good Taking some one else's word and not taking time to go to the proper place for information, the trio believed the train waited for some time and laid siege to a restaurant to the extent of ordering juicy meat sandwiches with visions of pumpkin pie and a drink in the offing It would take too long to chronicle the events which took place in rapid succession when the outfit learned that the train was ready to leave the station, but it was a smiling coachful of folks that greeted the trio as they fell, breathless into a double seat, just as the wheels of the train began to move, each bearing triumphantly a sandwich There was a certain satisfaction in having made the train and a feeling that at least the aching void would be partially appeased, but imagine the crushing blow, and the one that made the trio wish they were most anywhere else was when the diningcar porter cast a disdainful eye as he swished through announcing "luncheon is now being served in the dining car in the rear" And on top of everything else there's a cleaning bill for a pair of brand new gloves damaged by "frying"

Entertainers

CHILDREN seem to have gone musical, at least the ones we have encountered recently. It was our pleasure to be in the company of one, not so many days ago, who did not believe in suppressing her desires along a musical line and for an hour we were entertained with her efforts on the xobo. Her theme song was "School Days" and we had it in waltz time, rag time, with the tremolo in full blast and without She was particularly fond of the slate writing episode and needless to say sang it with feeling. Well, we can say we were entertained at least and she was cute.

"Tell me more," Nolly went on. "Whom did you have supper with?"

"The dark, slim one."

"Did he take you home?"

"No, the botanist took me home. He was very clever. We had such an interesting discussion about—about hothouse plants. He's invited me to tea tomorrow."

Venice dragged her eyes from their inner visions to look quietly towards the grey square of window with its diagonal streaks of wet.

"I've got to go, Nolly, dear. It's dreadful out."

"Must you really, Venice?"

"Yes. I'm going to the Lido tonight with Donny Reese."

It was the sort of thing Venice never had an opportunity to do. An evening a deux. She would have liked it better than any real party. She saw herself on one of the red plush seats against the wall. The air was intoxicatingly warm and smoke-laden. The lights were dimmed while Mose and Fontana danced. He lifted her, light as down, then let her sink slowly to the floor again. They did it beautifully. A spotlight hammed them in in a great melting circle of yellow. Suddenly Donny Reese pressed Venice's hand beneath the table. She actually crimsoned.

"Your face is scarlet from the fire."

Venice started. Nolly's voice brought her back to the shabby little sitting-room, again. She scrambled to her feet and lent he Nolly a helping hand.

"You'll come soon again, Venice, and tell me more?"

They kissed each other good-bye.

"Of course I will, Nolly."

Hailing a taxi through the steely grey slant of persistent downpour, Venice felt happy and warmed. She saw all that she had been recounting to Nolly with a latent sense of pleased excitement. She had forgotten her lack in the recital of the homage that she had never had. It was real to her for a little while.

Venice went to Lola Goadby's cocktail party with definite reluctance. She had discovered that dinners and dances were bad enough when somehow or other people were forced to notice you, but success at cocktail parties or teas was closely dependent on your ability at a quick response as soon as you were introduced. If you were unable to blithely start an immediate conversation your vis-a-vis invariably wandered off to some one else who could.

She slowly deposited her coat and gloves in Lola's room. She dreaded going downstairs into that small, seething jumble of gay chatter and easy badinage. She could not know that there would be two people here this afternoon who would prove definite factors in her life.

Lola rushed to greet her, thrust a cocktail into her hands and then hurried away to welcome some one else. Venice stood studying the rim of her glass as though it were worthy of microscopic inspection. Then she looked up and let her eyes travel the room. Suddenly she forgot herself standing there alone, in her puzzled analysis of a girl whom she had never seen before. She was short and dark, rather untidy looking and not particularly well dressed. Almost everything about her was ill-matched, like a jigsaw puzzle whose pieces don't quite fit. Her black, heavy lidded eyes were evasive, her wide mouth set not quite straight. Her nose in contrast was small and classic. Her legs, in fish net stockings that in no way suited the rest of her costume, were slim and beautifully shaped. Her hat was too far on the back of her head, her skirt too short, but her patent leathers were little and narrow with intriguingly high heels. Almost every man in the room was attempting to talk to her at the earliest opportunity. Oddly enough, she did not seem to have much to say, and she rarely laughed. There was a persistent sullenness about her.

Venice could not resist staring at her. Where was her attraction? What could be her charm? At least three males determin dly hovered about her, and yet she seemed to employ none of the seductive little tricks that seem to tempt young men to one's side. Never a careless hand on an arm, no long looks into eyes, no abandon or vivacity. On the contrary, she seemed too well restrained, indifferent, quiet, almost rude. Her manner of looking away from people when they talked to her was baffling and uncomfortable.

"Here, darling; do you mind passing these? Old William is as slow as a tortoise, and I'm working myself into a fever."

Venice started. She took the plate of olives trickily wrapped in coats of bacon Lola was holding out to her. I must have looked like a county yokel gazing at the Empire State building, she thought.

Passing the appetizers to the strange girl, Venice smelled a peculiar perfume similar to musk.

"Thank you." She raised her lids to look at Venice, giving her a smile that turned up the corners of her mouth but left her eyes cold and untouched. They were like black coals in her dark, heavy face. she had strong, short teeth like an animals, even and white.

Venice inveigled Lola aside at the first feasible moment.

"Who," she queried in a careful undertone, "is the dark girl all the men are rushing?"

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

SATURDAY. There was a frost last night and Farrel's roof was all white when I opened up the window, so I have got to get my skates out and find a file somewhere and sharpen them, and I'll have to get my slay out and put Annabelle Lee on it to hold it down and drag her around on the dirt till I get the runners brightened up. If I had me some sandpaper she could ride my grandfather's foot for all of me, but there aren't many things a kid sister is good for so it won't hurt her to be useful for once in her life.

Whilst I was letting Jubilee down I was thinking about the little coon and about the old coon, and when it is Thanksgiving I am going to be glad I am not poor like Mrs. Curtis so that I would think coon is good to eat. All meat looks alike and it ought all be good to eat, but I bet a coon isn't.

Frenchy had the little coon to the barn with him this morning, so it took me a long time to milk. He held its mouth open and I gave it a few squirts and the milk was bubbling around in its throat because it was trying to not swallow it, and then it got hold of Frenchy's thumb and we thought from the way Frenchy hollered it was trying to swallow his thumb, but when he got it out it wasn't hurt much, because the little coon's teeth were too little to go in deep.

When I was setting at the table feeding my face a pancake my aunt said, "Well, today it Saturday and I got to have a Improse Toopenny hat from somebody. Don't all speak at once." Nobody spoke for quite a while and I could hear them all eating, and finely my father said, "I guess I can buy you one." My aunt opened her mouth to say something, but before she could speak my mother said, "If you buy one you can buy two." My father pushed his plate back and started getting up and said, "That settles it. I can't buy any." "Oh, yes, you can," said my mother, "you said you could buy one; and I am your wife." Then my grandfather told my aut he would buy her one, and she was mad and told him she would die before she would wear anything he would buy for her, and he grinned and said, "That's a promise!" And then she was mad so I grabbed my hat to hike out before I got blamed for something, because when grownups fight if there is a little boy around he gets most of the blows.

I almost knocked Yaller and Fuzzie and Muggie off the back step when I jumped outdoors, and they had a basket and they said we were all going out to Maple Grove to get some autumn leaves and wouldn't that be fun. I said yes, that wouldn't be fun, but I had to go, and then we took them round to Rusty's shop and varnished them, and they are going to look pretty slick, so we had a lot of fun after all. Only I sat down on a varnished leaf, and it was dried on when I got home. My grandfather asked me if I had been playing in the garden of Eden. I hadn't been in nobody's garden.

"Heart of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge Returns to the Work Studio.

WHEN Mother Graham finished her pompous, self-satisfied little speech I knew—not for the first time in dealing with her—what the old novelists meant by "mingled emotions." For I experienced a whole set of them, ranging from hot anger at her unpleasant little tirade concerning my inability to care for my child because of my professional work, to glee, tinged, I am afraid, with malice, at the success of my ruse to get her to come out into the open and offer to care for Faith during our domestic crisis. We all had known that she would resent most strongly the permitting of any other person but herself to care for the baby during Katherine's enforced attendance upon the wounded Chinese. But we also knew the outraged dignity, the assumption that she was looked upon as a sort of upper servant, which would have been hers if I had asked her directly to care for the baby. I felt a pardonable little thrill of triumph at the success of my strategy, and it went far to palliate the hurt given me by her caustic words.

I was suddenly conscious that she was waiting for my answer, and I forced my lips to a smile and my speech to an expression of gratitude.

"That will be perfectly marvelous, mother. It is really the only solution, and you do not know how grateful I am to you.

"There is no need for gratitude," she said, loftily. "I am doing only my duty. Please say no more about it. But I wish you would speak to Richard, Second, and Roderick about the ridiculous performance they are giving from the windows. What is the object of it, anyway?"

"It's a game they've invented, evidently," I said, placatingly. "I suppose they had to do something to while away the tedium of being cooped up here on the second floor. Of course," I added slyly, "if you'd prefer that they go downstairs——"

The Rose Works

"Under no circumstances," she interrupted sharply; "until Richard and Mr. Underwood have satisfied themselves that there is no possibility of those awful men getting near the house. The small boys must stay upstairs."

Characteristically, she did not modify her ultimatum with an "if" or an "and" or a "don't you think so," but she did not repeat her objection to the dramatic foolery of the youngsters and I realized with satisfaction that I had effectually spiked her guns as far as that part of my problem went.

"If you're in a hurry to get back to your work there is no use of your staying around here any longer," Mother Graham said when she had finished her enactment.

I did not wait for any further permission but, bidding her a cordial adieu, I went out into the upper hall, shutting the door carefully after me. Then I walked softly around the corner of the hall to the windows where the boys were keeping vigil.

"That's a very good idea that you have there," I said, and their freckled faces glowed. "You can keep track that way of everyone who comes up to the house, but"—I tried to look impressively at them, "you must be very careful to be quiet about it. You mustn't bother Grannie or waken the baby. Grannie's pretty nervous, you know."

What Was Lillian's Verdict?

"Yes, we know, and we'll be careful," they answered in a stage whisper, that my mother-in-law could easily have heard inside the room if it were not that she is more than a trifle deaf, although she will not admit it.

"Very well, then," I said, giving each one a pat on the shoulder. Instinctively, I knew that the young guards did not wish to be kissed at this moment of exultation.

I put up my hand in salute as I turned toward the stairs. "Baby Faith," I exclaimed softly, voicing the "countersign" that they had chosen for the "guarding" of the farmhouse.

"Baby Faith," they chanted softly, and at the earnest look upon their faces there was a lump in my throat that did not get straightened out until I had gone downstairs, and whipping out the side door had crossed the yard to the studio bungalow in the orchard.

I found Lillian stretched out in a low armchair, a pile of manuscript on the end table at her side and two or three long pages in her hands.

"Don't you dare to tell me anything now," she said, imperatively. "I'm almost through with this, and I won't look up again until I finish."

Her words cheered me inexpressibly, and I tiptoed in and sat down in a chair near her, waiting, with eyes fixed on her face, until she should have finished the rough draft of the finale to my play, which she had been reading. There was no sound save the singing of the birds in the trees outside and the swish of the breeze as it stirred the treetops in the orchard, and there stole over me a sense of peace and security which was inexpressibly blessed.

She put down the last page and looked at me—a long, long look, which unaccountably I felt I could not read. I felt my throat go hot and dry. What was her verdict?
